THE RECENT AURORAL DISPLAY.

Re Magnificent Appearance in the West.

[From the Cincinnati Gazette, Jan. 4.]

The northern sky, between the hours of four and selected yesterday morfning, were lighted with andest auroral blaze that has been witnessed at a latitude perhaps since September, 1859. The sky was clear, with the exception of a lew thin spory ribbons of clouds floating in bands above the horizon. The air was cain and cold.

above the northern horizon a faint blush crept and rettred, but came again. At first the rosy glow suggested fire on some of the hills north of the city. Its faintness indicated distance, but sine delicacy, the tenderness and the depth of its time broved it one of those yriand confagrations the Solution of whose stery bailed the wisdom of ages.

Half an hour after one first blush the stars in half a sorthern heavens shone through a veli of deep, imitious crimson. Then in the northwest broad ands of red light, shot up in ranks half way to the with, brilliant and varying, now into the colors of solar spectrum, now lading through all the interficiale range, and withdrawing benind the hills. There toward the east up they came again, repeating the sublime display, but copying nothing. Lake rank of giants they swept along the norizon, and abbriew below the northeast hills.

This procession of spiendor left behind it a plain light, in which the stars looked pale. It was tike the dawn in quivering siniting brilliancy and Jor. Now. It resembled a broad, blazing iniky sy, and as moment later, red rose, like a vapor, vered the field with a delicate blush.

The final display was surpassingly grand. Twice cade of the procession of spiendor left behind it a plain cade, and the plain of the display was surpassingly grand. Twice cade of the plain of the display was surpassingly grand. Twice cade of the plain of the continuous of colored fire, and sat it upon the grand march, following the path of its edecessors.

Fen, pencil or tongue, it is no extravagance to comess, are feeble vehicles in the presence of such a miracle of beauty. Each particular bar of brightness had its peculing color, which, chameleon-like, it cast off every moment, to put on another no less beautiful. The transformations were of inconceivable variety. The band of burning crimson faded into a glow of pale azure, through which pencus of red shot till it was ablaze sgain. Then again the northern sky looked as if draised with a curtain that hung over it in graceaul foods. The splendid spectacle, with its throbbing pulsations of glow swept grandly to the east, went out, leaving as if loth to 70, an atmosphere of diffused, tender, gray light, to 70, an atmosphere of diffused, tender, gray light, to the time of the display was but an hour.

PEACH ORCHARDS OF CALIFORNIA.—The state of California has 300,000 peach trees, or about ave to every voter—enough to produce more asn 100 pounds annually for every person. The figures are large, but they are afficial and are apposed to be correct. Santa Chara county is down or 70,000 froes, sacramento for 74,000. El Dorada for 50,000, Sonoma for 52,000, San Joaquin for 45,000, Butte for 40,000, and Napa, Placer. Tuolumne, Colusa, Amador, Yolo and Yuba range between 20,000 and 30,000 each. Our climate and soil are well anapted to the peach, and the fruit will in time probably be cultivated on a large scale in this State for drying and curing.—San Francisco Atta Cattornia.
